Immediate Release

Centurion Electronics plc
("Company" or "Centurion")
New Customer Supply Contract

- New Contract Win to supply Audi C6 in China

Centurion Electronics plc, the UK provider of in-car infotainment systems, is pleased to announce that it has secured a new supply contract with Brunswick New Technologies Automotive, Germany for the supply of in-car entertainment to Audi China. This contract win is the second contract of the two expected wins reported in the trading statement issued on 8th March this year.

This new contract, which has been secured following a two year development partnership between Brunswick and Centurion, involves the supply of a premium rear-seat entertainment system, for standard fit on the Audi C6, the long-wheelbase version of the Audi A6. It is built exclusively for the Chinese market and is frequently used as a chauffeur-driven saloon. The system comprises of two 10.2" LCD screens which will be mounted onto the back of the front seats and the DVD player, integrated within a newly developed leather console installed within the rear seats, also includes connections for a games console, iPod and digital camera.

The entertainment systems are expected to be fitted during Q1 of Centurion's financial year ending September 2008, and start contributing to the Company's revenues in Q2 of the same financial year.

- Positioned for Market Growth

This new contract has added another prestigious client to Centurion's existing customer base, all of which are ranked within the top ten Global vehicle manufacturers by volume. With a wider spread customer base, Centurion is no longer reliant on any one customer or market region and is now well positioned for further market growth.

Centurion's product range contains core components and technologies that can be transferred whilst ensuring that systems are bespoke to specific customer requirements and brand image. With the addition of this new contract, which saw the product launched at the recent Shanghai Motor Show and supplying product into a new market with fast pace economic growth, added to the two other contract wins announced in February and April this year, the Company anticipates that turnover for the financial year ended September 2008, will be very significantly increased.

Commenting on this new supply agreement, Chris Rhodes, CEO at Centurion said:

"We are extremely pleased to have secured this prestigious contract and look forward to further developing the excellent working relationship that has been established with Brunswick Automotive. At the time of the Company's restructuring last year, we launched a plan to de-risk the business by completing our withdrawal from the retail market, rationalize our supply base, develop a core component portfolio and broaden our customer base. I am happy to report that this strategy has been successfully implemented and a secure foundation for yet further contract acquisitions has been created. Furthermore, we are now seeing firm signs of a wider distribution of in-car infotainment systems across all spectrums of the industry."
